The previous program requirement of K-12 state teaching certification is out of date with respect t to the range of career pathways and scholastic inquiries for a Ph.D. in art education. The new language reflects changes in the field of art education by allowing a greater diversity of background knowledge and experiences that might qualify an applicant for admittance to the Ph.D. program in art education. The program requirements have retained the possibility of requiring students' to fulfill additional semester hours in studio art, art education or certification leveling course work, but recognize that this is most appropriately determined through holistic review of students' professional goals within the field of art education.
